

REPETITION IN PRODUCT DESIGN

Donna Angelina . 2021

CUT & FOLD (WWW.OJEASTUDIO.COM)

It is called combinations with repetition because two geometries are combined to form the 5 pieces. The shapes seem to tilt towards different directions depending on the point of view, seeming unstable, impossible. They have a deep blue bubbly glaze all over, with varying textures that remind of the ocean. They are hand formed joining triangular slabs.

Process: hand built from slabs

Material: stoneware and glaze

Firing: 1240°C in electric kiln

Donald Judd, untitled (1969/1982),

Emphatically concerned with pure forms, Judd's works become statements about proportion and rhythm as well as three-dimensional space.

MOOLIN (LASFERA, DEZEEN)

An elegant floor lamp as a symbiosis of traditional Chinese craftsmanship, modern style, and the latest in lighting technology – lasfera has created a timelessly beautiful lamp with MOOLIN. The base and the lampshade are made by hand from bent bamboo poles that are shaped from a bamboo splint, thus the base of the floor lamp is connected with the lamp as a unit. This lamp structure makes the base a central component instead of a secondary one. The surfaces of the bamboo poles are oiled and thus free of chemical treatments.
